ADVANCE PERMANENT.

Extensive Operations Assure Continued Prosperity to the Iron Trade.

BELLEFONTE, Penn., Sept. 30.—The bright outlook in the iron industry, which is an important factor in the prosperity of Pennsylvania, has brought out some interesting figures from J. W. Geppart, superintendent of the Valentine Iron Company and superintendent of the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania. Mr. Geppart said yesterday: "The iron trade has struck an advance to stay. It was at its lowest ebb when the many new changes caused a suddenly increased demand for iron. The railroads replacing bridges with plate girder structural iron, to withstand the weight of heavier trains and cars of larger capacity; the replacing of worn-out rails; the building of new and larger cars, to replace the stock that has been allowed to run down in the past two years; the building of so much electric railway, as well as the erection of so many buildings with structural iron, all over the world, are some of the most important reasons why the iron industry will be kept up for an indefinite number of years, and that at good prices, too. More than two hundred thousand cars will be needed by the railroads in the next two years. If all the furnaces in the country would shut down for only eight days, there would not be a pound of pig iron in the country for manufacture, which is a good criterion of the small stock of iron in the country and the great demand for the same."

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—A special from Superior, Wis., says: "The high price of structural iron and the difficulty of obtaining it has had the effect of a renewal of the effort to get the affairs of the West Superior Iron and Steel Company into such shape that the big works can be re-opened. The plant, which is one of the most complete in the country, is now in receivers' hands. Should the Rockefeller interests obtain the works, the effort will be much easier. A plan is being worked upon, by which all the creditors of the concern will pool their interests in the hands of one man, and allow him to operate the works, which can be done at this time upon a paying basis."

ONE MAN MISSING.

Supposed Incendiary Explosion and Fire in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—At 3 o'clock this morning at the saloon of A. Stenovitch, 149 South Halsted street, an explosion was heard and smoke and flames burst from the front of the building. A man was seen running away from the place just before the explosion, and it is thought the flames were of incendiary origin. When the firemen arrived they found Bertha Meyers standing at a window, calling for help. A ladder was raised and she was carried to the street. Lizzie Disdey and Lizzie Marks were also carried down. The firemen searched for Mr. Marks, who was said to be in the building, but could not find him. The other occupants, it is said, reached the street in safety. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

Germans Warned Against Russian Loans.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—The Cologne Gazette, apropos of the reports that the Berlin bankers had been sounding Minister Dewitte on the question of their taking a share in a new Russian state loan, warns them to keep aloof from all financial projects in which M. Dewitte is concerned, and pursuing the subject reminds them that since he has obtained control of the finances of Russia the debt of that empire has been increased by three and a half millards of francs. "If Russia herself, or any Russian enterprise, wants any more money," says the Gazette, "let the French lend it to them."

DIPHTHERIA IN INDIANAPOLIS.

Practices of Christian Scientists Assist in Spreading the Disease.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 30.—The alarming spread of diphtheria in the city has called the attention of the Indianapolis health department to a serious state of affairs arising from the practices of the Christian scientists. In some cases the sanitarian has been refused admission to homes where children were dying, and no effort was being made to save them except by faith doctors, who knelt at the bedside and prayed until life had departed. In the northwestern part of the city the sanitary officers heard of several fatal cases that had not been reported. It is charged by the health officials that the Christian scientists have been meeting in a body at the bedside of diphtheria patients, going from one house to another and carrying the disease into places where the inmates had not been exposed. When taken before the coroner, some of the witnesses refuse to be sworn. Many of the people giving the health department trouble in this manner are well-to-do residents and fairly well educated. It is said that wholesale arrests will be made this week.

SEALS SCARCE THIS YEAR.

Fears That the Rosie Sparks Has Been Lost Off the Japanese Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 30.—Sealing schooner Alton, Morrison master, arrived from Ounalaska yesterday afternoon, after a trip of eighteen days. She left this port last December, and has been cruising around the Japanese coast and in Behring sea. Seals are scarce this year, and the Alton got only four hundred and fifty for the season.

Last April the Alton saw sealer Rosie Sparks about three hundred miles off the Japanese coast in Lat. 38°. Since then no vessel has sighted her, and it is feared that she is lost. She carried four or five boats and left this port shortly after the Alton. A sail attached to a spar was seen some months ago, drifting near the Japanese coast. It was torn from a vessel of about forty or fifty tons burden, possibly the Rosie Sparks.

Whiskey Trust Litigation Not Yet Entirely Settled.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—A morning paper says: Whiskey Trust litigation has not been settled, notwithstanding reports to the contrary given out Saturday in New York. It was learned yesterday that the factions have agreed on certain points in the settlement, but there are other difficulties remaining. It was learned from interested sources that the parties to the litigation hope to arrive at a complete settlement inside of ten days.

British Steamer Sunk in the Clyde.

GLASGOW, Sept. 30.—British steamer Wallachia, bound from this port for Trinidad, struck the rocks on Beacon Perch, in the Clyde, yesterday, and bounded off and sank. All on board were saved. The Wallachia was a wooden screw steamer of 1724 tons, built at Southampton in 1883, and was owned by Taylor, Cameron & Co. of Liverpool.

Oklahoma Indians Holding War Dances.

HENNESSEY, Oklahoma, Sept. 30.—It is reported that the Arapahoe and Cheyenne indians on their reservations west of here are becoming ugly and are holding war dances. Reports from Anadarko are to the effect that the Kiowas are uneasy and getting ready for the war path.

Prolonged Heat and Drought in England.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The prolonged heat and drought which have prevailed throughout England have inflicted a great deal of hardship and damage upon farmers. The pastures are completely destroyed by the burning rays of the sun, and the scarcity of water for cattle threatens a milk famine. The crops of roots are also suffering.

THE OFFICIAL ORDER.

President Cleveland's Tribute to General Schofield.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The following order, announcing officially to the army the retirement from active service of Lieutenant General John M. Schofield, was published today:

"Executive Mansion, Washington, Sept. 30, 1895. Lieutenant General John M. Schofield, having reached the age entitling him to relief from active military service, he is, in accordance with the provisions of law, hereby placed upon the retired list of the army, to date September 29, 1895, with full pay and allowances belonging to his rank upon such retirement. It is with much regret that the President makes the announcement that the country is thus to lose from the command of its army this distinguished general, who has done so much for its honor and efficiency. His gallantry in war challenges the admiration of all his countrymen, while they will not fail to gratefully remember and appreciate how faithfully he has served his country in times of peace by his splendid and successful performance of civil as well as military duty. Lieutenant General Schofield's career, exhibiting an unvarying love for his profession, a zealous care for its honor and good name, a just apprehension of the subordination it exacts, and a constant manifestation of the best traits of true Americanism, furnishes to the army an example of inestimable value, and should teach all our people that the highest soldierly qualities are built upon the keenest sense of the obligations belonging to good citizenship.

GROVER CLEVELAND."

General Miles, now in command of the Department of the East, will succeed General Schofield as commander of the army. When he will be detached from the Department of the East and ordered to Washington cannot yet be stated. Until the order bringing him to Washington is issued, orders to the army from army headquarters will be "by order of the Secretary of War."

ENGLISHMEN INDIGNANT.

Because a Legation Attache Has Ordered an American Yacht.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Evening News today expresses itself editorially as indignant at the fact that Almeric Hugh Paget, an attache of the British legation at Washington, has ordered a two-and-a-half rater from the Herreshoffs. Commenting on the subject, the Westminster Gazette also remarks: "The crop of attaches is abundant and we might find a better than this Yankee-smirched one."

CHINA YIELDS.

Offending Official Degraded, and England's Demands Met in Full.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The government has received information that China has yielded to the pressure of the British minister, by degrading the viceroy of Sze Chuen and according in full the other demands of Great Britain.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A despatch from Shanghai to a news agency says that Admiral Buller, with fourteen British warships, will go to Nunkin Wednesday. If the viceroy of Nunkin fails to comply with the British demands immediately upon the arrival of the fleet, the despatch adds, there will be very serious results.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—A despatch from Shanghai says that British Admiral Buller, commanding the Chinese squadron, arrived at Woo Sung Saturday on board warship Edgar. The other English war vessels at Woo Sung are cruisers Caroline, Undaunted and Archer and dispatch boat Alacrity. War sloop Daphne and gunboat Firebrand are at Shanghai, and at various ports up the Yang Tse Kiang are cruisers Rainbow, Spartan and Algerine and gunboats Plover and Swift.

Six Persons Killed by a Premature Blast.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 30.—A special to the World from Independence, Mo., says: Six men were killed yesterday afternoon by a premature explosion in a rock quarry near that place. The known victims are Mark Tierney, contractor, and a boy named Ferguson. Four other bodies are known to be under the rocks.

National Banks Must Make Reports.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Acting Comptroller of the Currency Tucker today issued a call for a report of the condition of national banks at the close of business Saturday, September 28, and also issued a special call on national banks for a report of the amount of taxes of all kinds paid by them during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1895.

Uncle Sam Pays His Interest Promptly.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—United States Treasurer Morgan today mailed 26,748 checks, aggregating $4,500,930, for the interest due on United States registered four per cent. bonds of 1907. A year ago the number of checks mailed was 26,832, aggregating $4,505,000.

NEW USES FOR PEAT.

German chemists have been experimenting with Irish peat, and have secured such remarkable results that a syndicate has been formed for the manufacture, on a commercial scale, of the various products that may be obtained from Ireland's bog lands. One of these products is an antiseptic "wool" for dressing wounds. It possesses absorbent qualities so great that it will soak up nine times its weight of moisture. The medical department of the French army has adopted this substitute for lint, and twelve thousand kilograms of it were sent with the expeditionary force to Madagascar. By a different process of chemical treatment the peat is formed into a material from which any article requiring hardness and durability can be produced. The German syndicate has now on exhibition in London insulators, axle boxes, machinery bearings, gun stocks, pianoforte legs and numerous other things to illustrate the possibilities of this new material.

Peat has been used in this country for lining refrigerators and cold-storage rooms, and to some extent as a covering for steam pipes, because of its value as a non-conductor of heat. But by these new German processes a wide field appears to have been opened, in which capital and labor may be profitably employed, and the Irish peat bogs acquire a value hitherto unknown.

One of the largest beds of fine peat in this country underlies the Great Dismal Swamp of Virginia. If the experiments of the German chemists should ultimately result in a large application of Ireland's peat deposits, it will not be long before some American chemist determines whether Virginia peat can be treated in the same manner and the same products be obtained.—Worcester Spy.

This Morning's News.

WARRIOR OF FAME.

General Miles Has Earned His New Position.

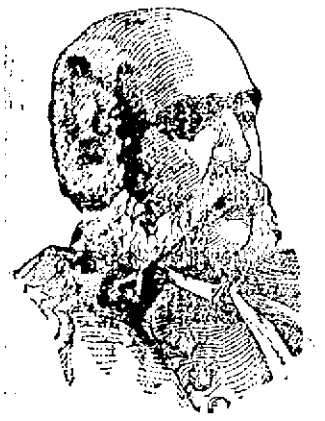

Took Leading Parts in Civil and Indian Wars.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Major General Miles announces that the president has notified him of his accession to the command of the army.

General Schofield retired from active service at noon yesterday, and it is probable that the appointment of General Miles will be announced by tomorrow.

This announcement will set at rest the rumors which have agitated army circles during the past year concerning General Schofield's probable successor. While General Miles was the senior major general of the army, and one of the most popular, personally, with his subordinates, it was reported that he was for some reason persona non grata to the president, and that the fact that he had no diploma from West Point might weigh against his chances. General Ruger was the principal rival for the appointment mentioned.

There was also an impression in some quarters that the office of general of the army might be left vacant for some time, as there is no requirement of law for such a position, and as there are precedents for leaving it unfilled.

GENERAL SCHOFIELD.

When General Miles was seen by a reporter last night at his quarters on Governor's Island, he was asked whether he will recommend any changes in the administration of the army. He replied that if he so contemplated it would hardly be proper to discuss them at this time. The general would make no direct reply to the question whether he thought the grade of lieutenant general might be revived by congress in his case as in that of General Schofield.

The rank of lieutenant general expires with General Schofield's retirement, as it is a grade only created by special acts of congress in recognition of distinguished services. It has been bestowed upon six generals, Washington, Scott, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Schofield.

Experience That Counts.

General Miles has received all his military training on the field of experience, instead of in the schools. He will be the first general for many years who was not a West Point graduate, and as the West Pointers are reputed to esteem themselves the aristocracy of the army, it has been reported that his volunteer antecedents would militate against his appointment so far as the influence of the army circle had to do with it. General Winfield Scott was the last commanding general, who was not a West Point man.

GENERAL NELSON A. MILES

General Miles is a native of Massachusetts, having been born in Westminister on Aug. 8, 1839. In 1861 he joined the Twenty-second Massachusetts volunteers, and served throughout the rebellion with great distinction. He distinguished himself early in his career in the Army of the Potomac, and took part in nearly every engagement up to Lee's surrender at Appomattox. General Miles distinguished himself in particular at Spottsylvania. Attacking the bloody angle on the right, he broke the enemy's line, routed them and captured Lieutenant General Bushrod Johnson and his division. At Five Forks, Miles saved the day by coming to the rescue of Sheridan's cavalry and Warren's Fifth corps.

General Miles' promotion was marked by somewhat exceptional rapidity, only about a year elapsing before he was made lieutenant colonel of the Sixty-first New York infantry, and a month later, Sept. 30, 1862, he was made a colonel of the same regiment. In 1864 he attained the rank of brigadier general of volunteers, and early in the following year obtained his commission as major general of volunteers. In 1866 he was mustered out of the volunteer service and placed in command of the Fourth United States infantry, in which he remained till 1869, when he was transferred to the Fifth Infantry.

Altogether the new commander has had a varied military career, since the war he has been best known as an Indian fighter. He did fine work at the head of the Indian Territory expedition in 1879. In 1876 he drove Sitting Bull over the Canadian line, captured a number of noted warriors and also succeeded in making prisoners of Chief Joseph and the Nez Perces. In 1875 he defeated and captured a band of Bannocks in Yellowstone Park. Not long after this he succeeded in bringing in Sitting Bull, and thus was more or a factor than any other man in the settlement of Montana and North and South Dakota. In 1886 he captured Geronimo and his band of Apaches in Arizona.

His most recent claim to public attention was the part he took in suppressing the Chicago strike of the American Railway union last year. General Miles was commissioned brevet brigadier general March 2, 1867, brigadier general in December, 1880, and major general in 1890, when he was assigned to the command of the division of Missouri, which he relinquished last year to take command of the eastern department on the retirement of Major General O. O. Howard.

In appearance General Miles is one of the most stalwart and soldierly men in the service. He is over six feet tall, and does not look his 50 odd years.

Suit of Great Magnitude.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—The most far-reaching law suit ever tried in California is on the calendar of the United States circuit court of appeals for the present session. It is the struggle of the heavy creditors of the Union Pacific railway and its 22 branches to have the entire business of the great Trunk line thrown into a common pool and administered as a trust fund by the federal courts. The complainants are, in part, stockholders and creditors of the company. The complaint recites that the Union Pacific Railroad company is not able to earn operating expenses either upon its main line or its branches.

Proof of Evil Doing.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—Referring to the scandal at the female hospital of this city, The Republic says: The graves supposed to contain the bodies of Mrs. Smith, Emma Lewis and Helen Hopper were opened yesterday, and the boxes therein were found to contain—one a log of wood, another a railroad tie and the other emptiness. The investigation will be pushed to a point where it will be absolutely ascertained to what extent the horrible traffic was carried on.

Spaniards Talk of Gore.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 30.—The Spanish residents are much excited over the manifestation on the part of the masses in sympathy with Cuban patriots, and their daily organ charges that some of the police and judicial authorities have displayed partiality when the populace were insulting Spain. The article concludes with the warning that if blood flows here in the streets over the Cuban question, the authorities will have to bear all the blame.

Bad For Ezeta.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 30.—A number of cases of arms and ammunition, which were brought from Mazatlan by Antonio Ezeta, have been detained at Acapulco by the custom house authorities. Ezeta was on his way to Guatemala, but the captain of the steamer refused to take him any further than Acapulco, as he feared international complications, as Ezeta had arms.

Murray Will Fill the Bill.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Times says: The government could not have made a happier selection for governor of Newfoundland than Herbert Murray, and if the colonial ministers take him into their confidence and allow themselves to be guided by his opinion, it is conceivable that an era of relative prosperity is yet about to open for Newfoundland.

No Decided Gains.

HABANA, Sept. 30.—The situation here is practically unaltered. There have been several skirmishes in the last few days in the province of Santa Clara, both sides losing a considerable number of killed and wounded, but neither gaining any substantial advantage. Two small insurgent expeditions are reported to have landed recently on the east coast.

Headed For New England.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—The big American liner St. Paul left Cramps' shipyards yesterday for her government trial off the New England coast. The official run will be made between Cape Ann and Cape Porpoise. She will probably put into Boston harbor for a short time before the trial.

Killed While Experimenting.

SANDY HOOK, Sept. 30.—At the government proving ground Saturday the breach-block of the "Canet" rapid firing gun blew out while it was being fired, killing Corporal Doyle and Private Conway, and seriously injuring Privates Coyle and McDonald.

Preparing For Contingencies.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The war office has summoned the inspector of constabulary on the gold coast of Africa by wire to confer upon the subjects of preparation of a military expedition to Ashantee, should war with that people prove inevitable.

Disturbing Goalicia.

LIMA, Sept. 30.—Conflicts have occurred between the Peruvians and the Bolivians on the frontier. Owing to the recent strained relations between Bolivia and Peru this frontier outbreak causes some apprehension.

Unheard From Since July.

QUEBEC, Sept. 30. — Four schooners which left here first week in July, to save the cargo from the wrecked steamship Mexico on Bell isle, have been given up for lost, or captured by gulf pirates.

Fatal Balloon Accident.

MONROVIA, Cal., Sept. 30.—F. G. Hagel, an aeronaut, and his wife have been traveling throughout the state making balloon ascensions and parachute jumps. Mrs. Hagel made an ascent here, and when at the height of 1000 feet, she pulled the rope which cut the parachute loose. The air caught the parachute, and it commenced to open, but suddenly she came down like a cannon ball. She struck so that her head came in contact with the ground first. Her skull was crushed.

Fooled Newspaper Men.

HALIFAX, Sept. 30.—Lieutenant Peary announced to newspaper men here that he would leave for Boston, with his party, at once. Several members of the party did leave for Yarmouth, and all the Saturday evening papers announced that Lieutenant Peary and his wife had gone, and the error was not discovered until yesterday. It is not known when he will leave Halifax.

Bitten by a Stallion.

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 30.—George T. Bailey, a special officer, had his chin and the lower part of his face badly lacerated by a vicious stallion at Franklin Trotting park yesterday, and narrowly escaped losing the entire jaw. The stallion imbedded its teeth in the victim's jaw, ripping the flesh almost entirely from the chin, from which blood flowed freely.

JENNINGS'S FINE WORK.

Won the Game Which Gives the Pennant to Baltimore.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Although the championship season in this city does not come to an end until today, the destination of the pennant for 1895 was decided by the result of Saturday afternoon's contest between the New Yorks and Baltimores. The Orioles won the game and the pennant in the seventh inning on a combination of hits and errors. If ever nine ball players worked hard to keep the question of the pennant in doubt another day it was the New Yorks. They played at all stages, still the Orioles were too fast for them.

Jennings really won the game by himself, his phenomenal catch of Batton's fly in the eighth inning, when two were on bases, in which he completed a double play unassisted, was all that saved the Giants from tieing the score, as the hit went on a straight line for center field. The Orioles were loudly cheered as they marched off the field. Darkness put an end to the game.

Anderson of the Brooklyns has made 10 home runs.

The League season closes today all along the line.

There will be many young pitchers tried by the League next season.

Thompson leads in home runs, with 18, and Joyce is a good second with 16.

Hamilton performed the feat of making five hits in a game for the first time on Friday last.

Jimmy Manning is credited with clearing $17,000 in Kansas City last season and $15,000 this year.

Fred Pfeffer is a great favorite in New York as well as in other cities, and will be a great card for the New Yorks in 1896.

Frank L. Donahue, a pitcher from Waterbury, Conn., has been signed by Von der Ahe to pitch for St. Louis next season.

The New Yorks have a pitcher named Otto on trial for next season. He hails from Morris Plains, N. J., and is said to show well.

All of the New Yorks, except Butler, H. Davis and Doheny, who have signed for next season, have received their notices of reservation for 1896.

AGAINST FIGHTING.

Reported Opinion of a Majority of Lone Star State Solons.

AUSTIN, Sept. 30.—The following is direct from the governor's office, and is self-explanatory: "Governor Culberson stands firm on his position against prize fighting. He intends to suppress it, and will exert every power of his office to that end. He believes that the law, as it now stands, is against it, and that the decision of Judge Hurt is fundamentally wrong.

"His proclamation does not recede one inch from his declared purpose to enforce the law, regardless of the Hurt opinion. He simply begins with mild, pacific measures before force is used. The legislature convenes Oct. 1, and the case against Comptroller Finley, it is expected, will be set for hearing in the supreme court. What the legislature will do then will be known when the cases come up, in all probability.

"If the legislature shall pass an effective law and put it into immediate effect, that will end it. If it does not, the supreme court will likely decide the matter in a few days, after Oct. 10, and if it holds that the Lyons law is not operative, and the criminal statute against prize fighting is in force, the public may rest assured that the governor will use all the military force of the state to uphold the law and dignity. Should the decision of the supreme court be against the state there will remain the law against affrays and disturbances of the peace."

Ex-Governor O. M. Roberts has written Governor Culberson, commending his conduct in calling the legislature. Inquiry sent members as far as heard from, indicate that a law to take immediate effect, making prize fighting a felony, will go through by an overwhelming majority.

Kurds Thought Bicycle Made of Silver.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 30.—Frank Lenz, the bicycle rider, was beyond doubt murdered by the Kurds in Tchelkain, Armenia, in May, 1894. A sworn affidavit made by Ehozer Semsiman was received by the executors of Lenz here yesterday. The affidavit was taken at Erzeroum, Armenia, by the British consul. Semsiman located parts of Lenz' bicycle near Tchelkain. Lenz stopped in this village one night and was never again seen alive. The natives thought his wheel was of silver, and murdered him and broke up his bicycle and divided the different parts.

CLOTHING

Until Thursday, October 3, at 3 P. M. And we will open your eyes, showing you the finest stock of Tailor-made Men's, Boys' and Children's fine Fall and Winter Clothing ever seen in this city.

The Wilson Bill.

Stopping of factories, scarcity of money and the terrible strikes all over the country have demoralized all kinds of business, but in no line has there been as many failures as in the Clothing Line. We found many wholesale and retail clothiers in failing conditions, and being enabled to shake the ready cash at them, they refused no offers. We secured immense lots of desirable clothing at our own prices but can't hold them, and must get our money out of them; therefore we have rented this building for 3 Days only, as we are forced to get rid of an immense stock of Clothing in this short time, and the prices will bring every man and woman within 50 miles of this city to our store. Never in the History of America have such bargains been offered; this will be a genuine slaughter of clothing. This city was selected on account of its prosperity, by our Head Manager, and we will give the hard-working people a chance of a life-time to secure Fine Winter Clothing at less than one-third its value. Every dollar's worth of goods must be turned into cash within 3 Days; and if you wait until the doors open you will be rewarded. THE GOLF TOURNAMENTS.

The first tournaments for the golf championships of the United States, under the auspices of the United States Golf Association, will be played this week at the links of the Newport Country Club, beginning tomorrow. Last year there were really two championship contests, one held here and the other at the St. Andrew's Club, near Yonkers, and two champions, William Lawrence, who won the former, and L. B. Stoddart, who won the latter. Last winter it was decided to form one general association, uniting all local clubs, and to hold but one tournament, the winner to be champion of the United States. Mr. Theodore A. Havemeyer, president of the local club and of the national association, who has been called "the father of golf in the United States," has presented to the association, as a perpetual trophy for the amateur championship, a magnificent silver cup, valued at $1,000. It is the finest golf trophy that has ever been offered for competition in the world. The cup is beautifully chased and ornamented, bearing a number of golf scenes and other appropriate devices. The club of which the winner of the amateur championship is a member will hold this cup for one year, and a solid gold medal will be presented to the champion himself. Silver and bronze medals will be given to the winners of second, third and fourth places. These prizes are for the amateur championship, in which play will be commenced tomorrow and continue through the week.

Ten clubs are represented in the thirty-four entries, and the liveliest competition is anticipated. The entries include the present champion, L. B. Stoddart of the St. Andrew's Club of Yonkers, N. Y.; Charles B. MacDonald of the Chicago Golf-Club, who took second championship honors last year; Archibald Rogers of the St. Andrew's Club, who took third place last year; E. C. Kent of the Tuxedo Club, Arthur L. Livermore and Rev. W. S. Ralnsford, D. D., of the St. Andrew's; Dr. Charles Claxton and Louis A. Biddle of Philadelphia, George T. Rice, Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., F. J. Amory and Laurence Curtis of the Country Club of Boston, and J. F. Gray of the Shinnecock Hills Club. The full list of entries is as follows:

St. Andrew's Club—L. B. Stoddart, David G. Henderson, Archibald Rogers, Arthur L. Livermore, James Park, Rev. W. S. Ralnsford, H. Spaulding De Garmendia, C. E. Sands and William H. Sands.

Chicago Golf Club—Charles B. Macdonald.

Country Club of Boston—George T. Rice, Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., Laurence B. Curtis, Robert J. Clark, F. J. Amory and Stephen H. Bennett.

Philadelphia Country Club—Dr. Charles Claxton and Louis A. Biddle.

Meadow Brook Hunt Club—Oliver W. Bird.

Lakewood Club—Robert B. Kerr.

Essex County Club, Manchester, Mass.—John Moorhead, Jr., Charles S. Hanks and Gerard Bemeut.

Tuxedo Golf Club—Dr. E. C. Rushmore, Alfred Seaton, Jr., James L. Breese, E. C. Kent, William Kent, Goold Hoyt.

Shinnecock Hills Club—J. F. Gray and H. G. Trevor.

Newport Golf Club—Richard Peters, Winthrop Rutherford and Victor Sorchan.

Friday the open championship tournament will be commenced, and all the entries are professionals except Charles B. MacDonald and Winthrop Rutherford. The professionals are William Dunn of the Shinnecock Hills Club, the present champion; William Campbell of the Essex County Club, James Foulis of the Chicago club, William F. Davis and H. Rawlins of the Newport club, Samuel Tucker of the St. Andrew's Club, John Patrick of the Tuxedo Club and John Reed of the Philadelphia Country Club.

In the open championship the first place may fall to an amateur or professional, but the second, third and fourth places are limited to professionals only, and they will receive money prizes. If a professional wins first place, he will receive a money prize; if an amateur, the value in plate will be given him.

The tournaments will be in charge of the officers of the golf association and the green committee of the Newport Golf Club, Messrs. H. M. Brooks, Winthrop Rutherford and O. H. P. Belmont.

THE BICYCLE PARADE.

Three of the [illegible] for the recent lantern parade of the cyclists are shown in the window of the Newport One Price Clothing Company, and Saturday evening attracted much attention. They seemed worthy of such a handsome show as the cyclists made. The judges' special prize, given to George Parrott, who engineered the man-of-war float, is a handsome water pitcher, suitably engraved. It is said that the judges ruled Mr. Parrott out of the competition for first prize because he had two assistants who helped steady his float. There were a number of other contestants who had assistance in the procession, and in view of the fact that nothing had been said beforehand regarding such matters the judges' decision did not meet with general approval. The appearance of the pitcher, however, made everything all right. Before another such parade is held some rule should be adopted in relation to such contingencies.

It has been suggested that the cyclists take some pleasant afternoon soon for a street parade, to which every rider in town be invited. The occasion would afford opportunity for considerable display in the matter of the adornment of wheels, and would give the bicyclists and the public an opportunity to see how strong a hold cycling has in Newport. It would also give the Spinning Wheel Club and the unattached riders of the fair sex a chance to appear and show how many have wheels and how well they can ride. To make such a parade a complete success, it would of course be necessary for all cyclists to participate.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Miss Annie B. Wilson is visiting in Hartford, Conn.

—Mr. John Henry Sullivan has returned to St. Francis Medical College, Brooklyn.

—Superintendent Baker will hold an examination Wednesday of candidates for positions as teachers in the public schools.

—The engagement is announced of Mr. Remington Ward of this city and Miss Myrtle Bull of Woodstock, New Brunswick.

—The railroad company has placed signboards with the words, "Stop, Look, Listen," at the Elm and Poplar street crossings.

—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lawrence have returned from a short visit to New York, and will reside at 20 Bull street, having decided to make Newport their home.

—During the month of October there will be services with the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament at St. Joseph's Church every Wednesday and Friday evenings.

—Mr. J. K. Sullivan has nearly completed the excavation for Governor Lippitt's new house at Boat House point. The contract for the building has not yet been awarded.

—Saturday afternoon the water pipe, on Bellevue avenue, near "Marble House," burst, and for a time furnished a free exhibition water-spout. A News reporter who happened to pass by notified the water works office, and the display was soon stopped.

—Saturday, when the report reached the Torpedo Station that steamer Harry was disabled off the lightship, it was said that she was an excursion steamer, and was drifting on the rocks. The Stiletto and Cushing were preparing to go to her assistance when it was learned that she was in no danger.

—Twelve gun racks for the new army rifles have been received at Fort Adams. They are circular in form, and the rifles are locked in by leather belts which encircle the top of the rack. The new rifles have such range and penetration that it is not likely that any further rifle shooting will be done at the Fort Adams range, because of the liability to accidents.

—The exterior work on Mr. C. M. Hutton's new villa at Shamrock Cliff is very nearly done, and the staging is down from all sections except one corner of the big tower which tops the porte-cochere. The plasterers are busy at work on the first two floors, and by the time cold weather sets in the work will be so far advanced that storms will not affect the further progress of the men.

THE MANATEE.

Of all the large animals of the American continent, none is more remarkable in form than the manatee. Although this strange creature is of goodly size, often reaching a weight of several hundred pounds, and sometimes attaining a length of thirteen feet, yet I venture to say that not more than one person out of every four thousand in the United States could now arise and correctly answer the question: "What is a manatee?" Whenever you mention the name of the creature to any one save a student of quadrupeds, of a surety you will have that question to answer forthwith.

The manatee is an animal that lives exclusively in the water, and while it is shaped somewhat like a seal, it is very far from being one. I mention the seal by way of comparison solely because it is the only quadruped which can be used. The heavy bag-like body, short neck, blunt nose and round head of our harbor seal do indeed suggest the form of the manatee; but there the resemblance stops short.

Instead of having hind flippers like a seal, the body of the manatee terminates in a very broad and very flat tail, which forms an admirable propeller. Its front limbs are simply big, flat paddles, by no means so shapely and useful as the front flippers of a sea-lion. It has no hair—or, at least, none to speak of; a smooth but very thick and tough skin, small, weak eyes, and a blunt nose. Instead of having teeth like a seal, and feeding on fish, it has only a set of rather weak molars, and lives solely on aquatic plants.

It lives in the mouths and lower reaches of rivers that flow into the sea in tropical latitudes, and while it does not object to salt water, it is most at home in water that is either brackish or else quite fresh; and the latter is preferred because of its aquatic vegetation. Unlike the seal, it is quite unable to come out on land.

I am glad to be able to say that even today this remarkable animal is an inhabitant of one portion of our strangely diversified United States. For some particular reason, probably the abundance of good food combined with a good depth of water, a number of manatees have chosen to inhabit the St. Lucie river, Brevard county, Florida, which flows into Indian river, eighteen miles above Jupiter inlet. Their presence there has been well known for twenty years or so; but, fortunately for them, they possess neither the checkered-leather hide of the sad-eyed alligator, the spun-glass plumes of the unhappy egret, or the delicious flesh of the wild turkey; and so as yet they have not been entirely exterminated.—[W. T. Hornaday, in October St. Nicholas.

WOMEN BLAMED FOR EVERYTHING.

There is nothing that makes the writer quite so furious as to have every dreadful happening in life credited to woman's extravagance. Ever since that memorable repast partaken of under the apple tree in the Garden of Eden, woman has been blamed for everything that has gone wrong. If a man fails in business, it is on account of the extravagances of his wife; if a man goes wrong, it is always because a woman led him; if the bank cashier absconds, as a matter of course it is because his wife made demands upon his purse that he was unable to meet honestly. And so it goes, through the whole vocabulary of man's wrong doings, making woman the direct or indirect cause of all his downfalls.

Granted, for the sake of argument, that women are extravagant. Who makes them extravagant? Who inspires and encourages her luxurious tastes and propensities? Who demands that she not only be lovely and beautiful by nature, both in face and form, but insists that she be improved by all the devices that are invented for her personal adornment? No one under the shining sun but man, of course.

A wife spends her husband's money, but he at least has the satisfaction of knowing and seeing where it goes; while he, on the other hand, spends many times the same amount, and no traces of comfort, luxury or pleasure are visible in his own home to represent the amount he has disbursed. True, among many women there is a spirit of rivalry in the matter of dress, and often she will indulge in fancies that can be ill afforded; but the women are few who cannot be reasoned into economy by the husband who adapts his own desires and spending proclivities to the capacity of his purse. Let man, who pretends to be the stronger and wishes to be looked up to, set the example of personal retrenchment, and he will soon see the good fruits of his commendable departure. Every woman should study to make the best of herself with the means at her command, an attention to dress being useful in retaining even in the minds of the most sensible and practical men that pride in a wife's appearance which is so pleasing and agreeable to her.

It is proverbially true that the man whose wife pays little or no attention to the matter of dress, is always secretly or openly admiring the woman who is well dressed and makes the most of her opportunities to appear pleasing and attractive. Of course, love of dress has its perils, and must be controlled by good sense with a fair stimulation of personal vanity. And when indulged in to the detriment and exclusion of other duties and beyond the compass of one's means, it cannot be too severely condemned.—[Philadelphia Times.

Dr. Talmage's formal acceptance of the call tendered by the First Presbyterian Church of Washington has been received, and he will preach his first sermon as co-pastor Sunday evening, October 27.

"For several months, I was troubled with a persistent humor on my head which gave me considerable annoyance, until it occurred to me to try Ayer's Hair Vigor. Before using one bottle, the humor was healed."—T. T. Adams, General Merchant, Turberville, Va.

THE DREAM SHIP

When the world is fast asleep,
Along the midnight skies—
Although it were a wandering cloud—
The ghostly dream ship flies.

An angel stands at the dream-ship's helm,
An angel stands at the prow,
And an angel stands at the dream-ship's side
With a rue wreath on her brow.

The other angels, silver-crowned,
Pilot and helmsman are,
And the angel with the wreath of rue
Tosseth the dreams afar.

The dreams they fall on rich and poor,
They fall on young and old;
And some are dreams of poverty,
And some are dreams of gold.

And some are dreams that thrill with joy,
And some that melt to tears,
Some are dreams of the dawn of love,
And some of the old dead years.

On rich and poor alike they fall,
Alike on young and old,
Bringing to slumbering earth their joys
And sorrows manifold.

The friendless youth in them shall do
The deeds of mighty men,
And drooping age shall feel the grace
Of buoyant youth again.

The king shall be a beggar-man—
The pauper be a king—
In that revenge or recompense
The dream-ship dreams do bring.

So ever downward float the dreams
That are for all and me,
And there is never mortal man
Can solve that mystery.

But ever onward in its course
Along the haunted skies—
Although it were a cloud astray—
The ghostly dream-ship flies.

Two angels with their silver crowns
Pilot and helmsman are,
And an angel with a wreath of rue
Tosseth the dreams afar.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES.

While it is yet too early to form confident opinions concerning Presidential candidates for 1896, the opportunities for speculation are many. There are numerous straws flying through the political atmosphere which go to show which way the wind is blowing, but it must be confessed that they are not all flying in the same direction. This is as might be expected, for ours is a great country, and the same conditions seldom exist in all its parts.

As to the unofficial nominees in sight, it is safe to say that the Republicans have more definite and pronounced candidates in the field than the Democrats. It is now pretty generally believed that ex-President Harrison has decided to take himself out of the arena, and is not hereafter to be considered an aspirant for a second term. The Chicago Times-Herald says: "We are in a position to confirm the news wired by our New York correspondent. Within the last ten days General Harrison, in free conversation with a prominent Republican, formerly a United States Senator, declared that he is in no sense a candidate for President in 1896, and that his name would not be presented to the national convention. Being asked whether he would authorize a statement to that effect, he said he preferred not to do so, but he did not ask that the statement should be considered confidential. In further conversation with the same distinguished gentleman the ex-President said that in his opinion the standard bearer of the Republicans in the coming campaign will be a Western man, and in that connection he indicated the belief that McKinley, to whom he paid a high tribute as an able and popular exponent of Republican opinion, is very likely to be chosen." This is pretty definite, and coming from a Republican source and from a paper friendly to the ex-President, seems to be conclusive.

Assuming, then, that General Harrison is out of the field, it is evident that, as suggested, Governor McKinley is the leading candidate from the Central and Western states. It is true that Allison and some others are "named" from time to time, but they are suggested as compromise candidates in case of a deadlock, rather than as independent and positive contestants. This leaves ex-Speaker Reed, who is undoubtedly the choice of New England and some other Eastern states, and Governor McKinley, as the champion contestants in the race for the White House, with the advantage in favor of the Ohio candidate, since he is supposed to represent a much larger and more populous territory. Should Governor Morton's "boom" materialize in the convention, which is doubtful, it would still further cripple Mr. Reed, and virtually make his case hopeless, for New England and New York must go together in order to make even an impression on the national convention.

We have but little faith in the Morton movement, because there is about it an evident insincerity on the part of his supposed or rather professed friends. Mr. Platt had a purpose to be served in directing his convention to declare for the New York governor, and that purpose has been or will be fully served before the nomination is made. He will probably give Mr. Morton a complimentary vote on an informal ballot, and having done so much will then turn the vote over to some other candidate, according to pre-arrangement. Mr. Platt is altogether too much of a politician to subject himself to limitations such as would be dictated finding an ordinary men, and he will probably have entire control of the New York delegation, as he did in the recent state convention.

And so it may be put down that Messrs. Reed and McKinley are, as the case now stands, the chief contestants, and it is fortunate for the party that such is the fact. Both are well known to the whole country, and are spoken representatives of party principles. No one will deny the ability or doubt the honesty of either. Each has made himself obnoxious to the opposition by his leadership in the past, not because of even suspected wrong doing, but for the reason that they have openly and boldly carried the party principles to their logical conclusions, and stood by them to the last. Such men are not, however, always the most available candidates, as is shown by the experiences of Henry Clay, Daniel Webster and many others, and it may be that both Reed and McKinley will be laid aside. In such a case Allison may come in, for though not a man without convictions, he appears to have few or no positive antagonisms. Possibly Governor Morton might then be accepted, and if we had even a modicum of faith in Thomas C. Platt we should consider his chances as good as those of Allison if not better. But it is a long time to the convention, and whatever the situation today it may be quite different when the time comes for action.

LISTER AND HIS WORK.

The death of Professor Louis Pasteur, which occurred Saturday evening, creates a profound impression throughout the civilized world. The son of humble parents, he had by his inherent ability risen to an eminence seldom reached, and one which made him a marked man among the scientists of the age. As a bacteriologist he proceeded to open a new world of thought and study for mankind. He it was who brought the bacteria from their hiding places and harnessed them for useful service in subjection to human control. His first acquisition in this line was of the greatest possible service to France, and scarcely less so to other nations. The circumstances are recounted as follows: "M. Dumas was studying the silkworm plague without result. This plague, called pebrine, was destroying one of the greatest industries of France. A hundred million francs a year represented the loss it was inflicting. Presently the silk industry would be annihilated. Dumas gave up the hopeless task, returned to Paris, and said to Pasteur: 'You must do it.' 'I? But I have never seen a silkworm!' 'What of that? You are a Frenchman. This pebrine will ruin the fatherland unless you stop its progress. I have failed; but you are younger.' Then M. Pasteur went to the silk region and began investigating pebrine. Soon he said: 'This is a disease, but it is caused by parasites. Let us kill all the parasites, and the plague will be ended.' At that all France laughed, even the ruined silk raisers. How could all these microscopic creatures be destroyed? 'By destroying all worms and eggs already attacked by them,' was his reply. 'That is nonsense,' said the others, 'for myriads of new parasites will spring into being by spontaneous generation.' And the Academy of Sciences formally censured him for bringing ridicule and reproach upon his profession. He was a chemist, and he was dabbling in biology, of which he was ignorant. Let the cobbler stick to his last. Nevertheless, he insisted that he was right, and he set about to prove it. He was at St. Hippolyte. He took with him the mayor, and went to a silk establishment. He took from it a dozen or more different lots of moths, numbering them, and examined them carefully. Then he wrote out a detailed prophecy of what would be the result of hatching their eggs, sealed it up, and left it in the mayor's hands. In due time the eggs of these moths were hatched. Some produced healthy worms, some diseased ones. Then the mayor opened the sealed prophecy, and found that M. Pasteur had foretold with absolute accuracy the condition of each lot. 'Well, then,' they said, 'the Jews know something about it, after all.' And they followed his advice and got rid of the plague in short order."

A somewhat similar process preceded other discoveries. In the study of animalcule he demonstrated the absurdities of so-called "spontaneous generation," which was always a dreamy theory and of ill repute. To the conclusiveness and value of these experiments Professor Tyndall testified by saying: "They have restored the conviction that life does not appear without the operation of antecedent life." And that is now the full conviction of the scientific as well as religious world.

Professor Pasteur followed up his original discoveries until he was able to say: "It is my conviction that it is in the power of man to cause all parasitic maladies to disappear from the world. Such diseases can only be propagated by contagion. Therefore, isolate the afflicted and the well will remain well."

His investigations and discoveries in relation to hydrophobia startled the world at their first announcement, and the results claimed are among many still held to be in doubt. Nearly all, however, agree that his work in that direction is of great value, and that the number of deaths from that terrible disease has been greatly diminished. It is impossible in a newspaper article like this to even mention by name all the great points in the life-work of such a man as this. But our tribute can be, and is, as sincere to M. Pasteur as a man, a scientist and a benefactor to mankind through scientific discovery as can be afforded in a treatise of many pages.

The coming municipal election in this city is not as yet awaking much public attention. And yet some people are evidently doing a good deal of thinking. The Republicans must find somebody as their candidate for mayor, which is said to be a somewhat difficult task. One thing is certain, they can have little hope of success unless they get the best. Mayor Baylehas the inside track, and will be found a hard man to beat, provided his party gives him a cordial support. But the question of city councilmen is fully as important as any other, if not more so.

Bishop Whittaker of Philadelphia declares himself, in the Philadelphia Press, as opposed to changing the name of the Protestant Episcopal Church. "But," he added, "it is hardly worth while discussing the matter, as the change is not likely to be made, any way. The last time the suggestion was brought up in the general convention there was an overwhelming majority against it, and I do not think such an idea will prevail if brought up at the coming convention."

According to the New York Evening Post, the honor of preparing the New York party platform in a series of epigrams is due to Mr. Manton Marble, who, some years ago, having become disgusted with the pompous old style, started this new fashion. But it is already evident that parties can lie and make promises which they do not intend to fulfill in short sentences as well as long ones.

The Democrats of Massachusetts will hold their state convention at Worcester Wednesday, and the Republicans in Boston Saturday. The Democrats will probably nominate Hon. George Fred Williams for governor, and the Republicans will undoubtedly re-nominate Governor Greenhalge.

There has been no equinoctial storm this year, and if one will study the record it will be found that none has occurred in connection with the sun's crossing the line in a majority of years. But it is well to keep up the old superstition.

And so the Spaniards have fired blank shots at the British flag and exercised the right of search at sea. This process will not go on long before Great Britain will return the salute with something beside blank cartridges.

Dr. Talmage speaks of the printing press as "the front wheel of the Lord's chariot." That depends; sometimes it appears to be more nearly the rear wheel of the devil's calaboose. It makes a difference how you use it.

Trouble appears to be brewing between England and China. And it is to be noticed that a good many countries are sending their ships of war on practice cruises to Eastern seas.

General Schofield goes out and General Miles comes in—about an even exchange.

ABOUT AMBER.

At the present day the supply of amber is chiefly obtained from the dreary and desolate region of Samland, on the eastern Baltic, a strange, weird land of blowing sand, shifting sand dunes, and poverty stricken amber-hunters. It is a cold northern Sahara. The district produces absolutely nothing but amber; vegetation it has none, and from Königsberg, its capital, to the end of the promontory scarcely anything subsists that a man could live upon. Its trade is all retrospective and geological. It lives upon the memory of its oligocene fertility.

Most of the amber is obtained after stormy weather by men who wade in the water with long hooks in their hands, and secure the lumps, torn up from the submarine beds, among the floating seaweed. But a considerable portion is also got by diving. For the beds are almost all below the sea-level, and it is only after heavy storms that the precious resin is dislodged in any quantities. No wonder it seemed to earlier ages a gift from the gods, very mystic and magical.

Königsberg and Memel are the centres of the export traffic. The biggest lumps go direct to Constantinople, Mecca, and North Africa, partly to be used up in Mohammedan ceremonies and partly to be carved into cigarette holders, pipe stems and personal ornaments. The smaller pieces are sent to Italy, where they are manufactured into beads and other gewgaws for the annoyance of tourists; while much is exported to uncivilized countries for the further adornment of those dusky ladies so dear to the hearts of our Stevensons and our Haggards. The lumps vary immensely in size; there is one in the Berlin Museum which weighs fifteen pounds.

At first sight, the ingenuous observer is apt to think no pine trees of our days produce such masses of resin. But then he should remember he is comparing a few hundred years of our cleared and stunted Europe with heaven knows how many ages of unbroken forest, and heaven knows what big groves of gigantic pine trees.—[Cornhill.

TRUE AMERICAN LIFE.

It is when we go into the smaller cities of our country that we find the real American life, the truest phases of American living, writes Edward W. Bok in an article on "Where American Life Really Exists," in the October Ladies' Home Journal. One need only go into such charming and delightful home cities as Albany, Troy, Syracuse, Binghamton, Rochester and Buffalo in New York state, or in such spots of charming intellectuality as New Haven or Hartford in Connecticut, or Springfield, Worcester or Lowell in Massachusetts, to see how far removed from the truest and happiest way of living are the people of the larger cities. American home life and everything that is uplifting in American domesticity are perfectly fragrant in such cities as Milwaukee, Indianapolis, Louisville, Cleveland or Cincinnati. People live in these cities as if they enjoyed living. The very exteriors of homes in these cities breathe forth a wholesome domestic atmosphere. A man of fair income in any of these cities lives like a human being in a home in which the sunshine visits each side of his house during a day. For less money he has a house with ground around it than his brother of greater means who lives in a larger city and has only a brown-stone chest of drawers in a closely-built block, into which the sun penetrates only through one side of the house. The man of the smaller community is, necessarily, happier with such living, and his wife and children are the healthier for it. Life means something to a man living in this way; it means contentment and comfort. * * * The quality of intellectual life of the smaller American cities astonishes one who finds it for the first time. And the secret of it lies in the simple fact that people in these cities have more time for the cultivation of mind, for the gratification of mental tastes. Literary clubs and neighborhood guilds have a deeper meaning than in the great centres. A woman's social life is absolutely refreshing and stimulating in these cities, and in direct contrast to the exhaustion of social gayeties of the large cities. But people come closer to each other, and their amusements are more satisfying, more harmonious. * * * Then, too, the church comes closer in the fulfilment of its mission in our smaller American communities. The religious life is truer than in the large centres. The church is taken into the lives of its people, and its interests are their interests, spiritual and material.

LETTERS TO THE QUEEN.

Of Queen Victoria's post-bag it is said that if Her Majesty personally answered all the letters addressed to her she would have enough to do to last her two long lifetimes. Sometimes the daily mail, as far as personal letters are concerned, numbers forty missives; on another occasion the mail-bag may only contain a few addressed to Her Majesty. During the year, however, something like six thousand letters are conveyed in the royal mail-bag to Windsor, Osborne, or wherever else the court may be, but of this large number many are addressed to members of the household and others engaged at the court.

It is a curious fact that the letters addressed to the queen may be divided into two classes. One—by far the larger of the two—consists of the communications evidently from Her Majesty's personal friends, fellow-sovereigns, members of the peerage, etc., who are honored by the queen's friendship. To the other class belong communications sent by people with real or pretended grievances, lunatics, etc., which it is doubtful if the queen ever sees. Everything entering the royal residence is, of course, seen by the private secretary, who naturally prevents all but the personal communications belonging to the first class from going any farther. It is worthy of note, in this respect, that the middle class rarely, if ever, trouble the queen with letters of any kind.

MADE CHARGES AGAINST THE LEADERS.

Socialist Knight of Labor on Trial for Unfaithfulness to the Order.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The trial, on charges of unfaithfulness to the order, of Daniel de Leon and the other socialist Knights of Labor, which was to have been held in Washington, was transferred to New York, and was begun here yesterday afternoon. This decision was arrived at Saturday, after de Leon had started for Washington to attend the trial there, and his supporters declared that it was done in order to condemn him in his absence. His friends, however, reached him by telegraph in Philadelphia, and he returned in time to defend himself.

The tribunal consisted of General Worthy Foreman Bishop and H. B. Martin, T. B. Maguire and J. B. French of the general executive board. All of them are included in de Leon's charges against General Master Workman Sovereign and the administration of the order. He declares that he has evidence that they have received money from the silver-mine owners to advocate free silver coinage, and that the counter-charge against him is for the purpose of excluding him from the general assembly, where he might prevent the re-election of Sovereign and his followers.

The trial began at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was not adjourned until long after midnight. It will probably be finished this afternoon. It is said to be a foregone conclusion that de Leon will be found guilty and suspended.

Appointments on Commander-in-Chief Walker's Staff.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 30.—It is made known that Commander-in-Chief Walker of the Grand Army of the Republic will not re-appoint Quartermaster General Burst, but that the place will go to Department Commander Powell of Illinois. Secretary of State Olin of Massachusetts will be appointed inspector general. Commander Walker hopes to issue a general order this week, announcing his appointments.

THE FOOTBALL SEASON.

The college football season opened Saturday, Brown beating the Newton Athletic Association team, 24 to 0; Harvard beating Dartmouth, 4 to 0, and Yale beating Trinity, 8 to 0.

Harvard played sixteen men during the game with Dartmouth, Beale and Borden as quarter backs, Hays, Dunlop, Weld and Worthington as half backs; Dunlop and Brewer as full backs, Hallowell and Stevenson as left tackles and A. Brewer and Newell as right ends.

Yale played practically a new team, only two of last year's regular players, C. Hinkey and Jerroms, and two substitutes, Boss and Chadwick, being in Saturday's game. Captain Thorne watched the game from outside.

Brown was represented by Donnison, Emory, Casey, Smith, Nott, Matterson, Robinson and McCarthy of last year's team. The Brown eleven has practically decided to adopt as its home policy the rules as revised by the Yale and Princeton association committee. The members of the team, to be sure, are being trained to play by the three sets of rules. The management believes that this policy will give the most general satisfaction. The only three games of importance in which Brown will be all likely to have to play by the Harvard-Pennsylvania-Cornell revision are in those arranged with the three colleges which have made the revision. Brown plays Harvard at Cambridge October 19, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia October 30 and Cornell at Ithaca November 16. Brown has no game arranged with Princeton, but she will meet Yale twice, once at New Haven October 2, and again at Providence November 9.

Rev. Hamilton Schuyler delivered a farewell sermon at St. Matthew's Church yesterday.

IT'S ENGLISH, YOU KNOW.

Great complaint is being made of Mr. W. W. Astor, who bought the Duke of Westminster's beautiful home on the Thames at "Cliveden," because he is building a high wall round a part of the land there. In the duke's time the park was open ground, save to trespassers, and the neighbors resent such an innovation from the American. A correspondent writes to a big daily paper expressing his wonder that these high park walls have never been made to yield anything to the chancellor of the exchequer. Of course it is right, he says, that Mr. Astor, or Mr. Anybody, who acquires a small estate shall fence it round, and in case of an ordinary garden attached to a house a wall may be necessary and allowable as a means of securing domestic privacy, but there is no necessity in the case of a large park. An open iron fence serves every purpose. There are thousands of miles of dead walls throughout England that are the very embodiment of the most churlish selfishness of the wealthy classes, and that mar the beauty of the country and spoil thousands of miles of pleasant walks and drives. While they are allowed, they should be certainly taxed. Perhaps another tax might induce the already overburdened subjects of the queen to forego that much unnecessary seclusion. No feudal lord ever entrenched himself with more care than has Mr. Astor at "Cliveden." Even those former dukes of Portland and Rutland are not to be compared with the American, who has no such cause as they for keeping away from the gaze of their fellow-creatures. Johnny Bull, you must lay on another rate!—[Entre Nous, in Boston Herald.

THE NEW LESSEE OF THE WINDSOR HOTEL.

Mrs. Hannah Gerry is dead. Peace be to her ashes! For the last forty years she maintained, on the corner of Nineteenth street and Broadway, a menagerie which has delighted the wayfarer. There were cows—great big mulley cows that were milked at eventide. Iridescent peacocks promenaded up and down the lawn, far prouder than the beautiful ladies on the sidewalks outside the fence, and cockatoos and guinea fowls, with a whole roost of barnyard beauties, made the Gerry enclosure a ruis in urbe and a sight for strangers from far and near. Mrs. Gerry has left her large property to her two children, Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry and Mrs. Frederic Gallatin.

Among the choice slices thus devised there happened to be the Windsor Hotel property—the whole block on Fifth avenue, between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh streets. The lease of the present proprietors expires on the first of May next, and Mr. Gerry was beside himself to know where to find the right man to handle such a valuable leasehold. With the great Astor hotel properties going up round Herald square, and the competition getting keener every day, it was a question that could only be settled by an application of the survival of the fittest.

Some dozen hotel men were selected by Mr. Gerry as possible tenants. Then these were sifted down to three. One of these was Warren F. Leland, who has had control of the Ocean House at Newport for the last two summers. His name and reputation as a hotel man were excellent, but the suspicious old commodore of the New York Yacht Club wanted to be convinced before he let a contract go that involved many millions of dollars.

The result was that Mr. Blackman, a confidential agent of E. A. Cruikshank & Co., whose New York leases go back for a hundred and fifty years, was sent to Newport to watch Leland's methods. He arrived, registered and watched. The first day he was there Mr. Leland noticed him, the second he spoke to him, the third day he won him. Mr. Blackman reported accordingly, and Mr. Gerry immediately made the lease which gives Mr. Leland the control for twenty-one years of the Windsor Hotel, at a price which would make our hotel men gasp with surprise.

The Windsor Hotel, mind you, is on the apex of Murray Hill. It is within ten short blocks of the Herald building, six of the Grand Central station, and when the new approach to New York by bridge is acquired the Windsor will stand closest to the terminal of all the Southern roads.

Mr. Blackman says that he had a gay time looking after the possible tenant of the Windsor Hotel. In his innocent, childish way, Mr. Leland was trying to make his Newport guests comfortable, without an idea that he was being "spotted" by the president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. When the spot came out, it represented the biggest hotel deal that has been made in New York in years.

Warren F. Leland began his career with his uncles, Simeon, Warren and Charles Leland, when they kept the old Clinton Hotel on Beekman street. In 1853 they moved up to the then grand Metropolitan Hotel, and made a great stir by introducing napkins as a component part of every meal served in their dining rooms. It is inconceivable now to know how awfully deficient we were then, but it is none the less true. Young Leland worked in the store rooms of his uncles' hotel, receiving goods from the dealers and doling them out to the servants. In 1805 he opened the Leland House, in Springfield, Ill. In 1867 he assumed charge of the Delavan House, Albany, with his brothers Charley and Lewis Leland. The fame of the Delavan is history, but in 1880 Mr. Leland was tempted to go to Chicago, where he bought the Garden House, and made such a success of it that ten years later he sold out his interest for $1,000,000.

With a fortune idleness seemed easy, but Leland would have none of it, for when the Chicago Fair was broached we find Leland influences always at work. He was not only instrumental in taking the Fair to Chicago, but preserved the lake front from the encroachments of railroads, and while conducting the Chicago Beach Hotel made $240,000 in four months, a record which I believe has never been equalled this side of Elysium.

While Mr. Gerry's agent was spotting Leland's Newport career, that unsuspicious individual was going ahead accomplishing the unheard of feat of making the big barn pay. He not only made the hotel barn pay, but he paid so many useful bills himself that at the end of the season, the other day, all the prominent bankers, merchants and shop keepers of Newport combined to give Mr. Leland a banquet, when they presented him with a big silver punch bowl, with the hope that he might never go thirsty.

Mr. Leland is going to pull the Windsor Hotel to pieces, in so far as that handsome structure needs renovation, and intends to meet the competition of the other great Fifth avenue hotels on the principle of give and take. There are possibilities in the rear of the hotel for all sorts of winter gardens, and with a band of music and various devices for grill rooms now in contemplation, it is safe to say that the Windsor will, under its new management, become one of the most attractive features of a New York that is constantly growing about that region between Thirty-fourth and Forty-second streets.—[New York Herald.

COLONEL HIGGINSON.

After a delightful summer spent at Dublin, N. H., Colonel T. W. Higginson and family return to their home on Buckingham street, Cambridge, this week. People who remember the old Higginson home in Cambridge, on Kirkland street, next to the scientific school, which was built by Colonel Higginson's father when the latter was steward of Harvard, will find much of great interest in the article by Colonel Higginson in the October Ladies' Home Journal, on "The Woman Who Most Influenced Me," in which he pays a loving tribute to his mother. Mrs. Higginson was a notable entertainer of her day, and the style of that day is shown in mention of the fact that when Colonel Higginson's eldest brother graduated from Harvard in 1825 there was a dinner party of sixty guests.—[Boston Home Journal.

PAINTING OUR HOUSE.

I was informed by every one in our village that our landlord was a man of his word and would do just what he agreed to, so when I got him to agree to paint our house and surroundings, I thought I had a pretty good bargain. "I'll paint everything around the place that you want me to," said he, with a suave smile, that was only slightly marred by his prodigious chew of tobacco. That was where I got left. I should have made him agree to paint the colors that I desired. Unfortunately our tastes do not agree, and that house looks like a chromatic abberration of a nocturne by Whistler. When I argued with him, he merely said that he was painting it the color that it ought to be. Finally I asked him what color the leaves of the trees around the place ought to be, "Green," said he, "as a matter of course." I have him now painting the autumn leaves green, as fast as they turn. I am ahead of one landlord, any way.—[Tom Hall, in Truth.

BIDS FOR NEW BUILDINGS AT THE TRAINING STATION.

The bids for building the new commandant's quarters and hospital at the United States Training Station, of which Mr. Creighton Withers is the architect, were opened at noon today by Captain Taylor. For the commandant's quarters, for which the appropriation was $8,000, the bids were: Philip Dowling, $7,593; M. F. Murphy, $8,150; Stewart V. Greany, $8,224; John Dillon, $8,500; F. A. Allan, Jr., $10,000. The appropriation for the hospital is $20,000 and the bids were: Philip Dowling, $17,993; M. F. Murphy, $19,950; Stewart V. Greany, $17,495.

TRAINING SHIP ALLIANCE.

Training ship Alliance, Commander John McGowan, is at the New York navy yard, and by order of the Secretary of the Navy, ten days' liberty has been given to the apprentice boys attached to the vessel. She will undergo some repairs to her machinery while at the yard, which will detain her until about October 15. When the Alliance leaves she will come to Newport, where she will take a draft of boys on board, and then proceed on a cruise. Commander McGowan, who was in command of the Portsmouth before that ship was put out of commission, has been detached and Commander N. H. Manney will be in command when the vessel sails for Newport.

TORPEDO BOAT CONTRACTS.

Secretary Herbert has wisely taken advantage of that clause in the navy appropriation bill which permitted him to use his discretion in letting contracts for two of the three torpedo boats authorized by Congress last spring. The absurdity of requiring one of these complicated machines to be built on or near the coast of the Gulf of Mexico and another on the Mississippi river was understood by all navy officers, but it was feared that political influence would be brought to bear on the Secretary to give these important contracts to any machine shop in the localities named that would make bids.

The Herreshoffs have an international reputation as yacht builders, and as they have turned out several very fast steam craft there is every reason to expect the two new torpedo boats to be equal to anything of their size.—[New York Herald.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mrs. C. S. Brice gave a luncheon yesterday in honor of Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador.

—The Block Island boat will enter on its winter time table tomorrow, leaving Newport an hour earlier than during the summer, or at 12:30 o'clock, and the island at 8:30 in the morning.

ARRIVAL HOME OF BATTERY B.

Light battery B, Captain Field, arrived at Fort Adams this noon. The battery left Fort Adams at 10 A. M. Tuesday, September 3, and has been in camp about ten days. The battery lost three horses on the trip and left one behind, sick. One man, J. McDonald, was sent home sick, but everybody else is in good health, though the outfit looked pretty dusty when it appeared at the fort. The battery camped last night at the Stone Bridge, after traveling thirty miles. Saturday they made twenty-nine miles.

FOREIGN FINANCE.

Belief That Russia is Seeking German Aid in Her Chinese Projects.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—The prolonged stay in Berlin of M. Dewitte, the Russian minister of finance, simultaneously with the visit to the German capital of an agent of the Bank of St. Petersburg, has given the appearance of truth to reports that Russia is endeavoring to induce Germany to participate in her politico-financial projects in China. M. Dewitte, however, has positively denied that his visit has anything to do with finance, but there are many who still believe that this assertion is merely a diplomatic figure of speech. M. Dewitte said the fact that he had accorded interviews with several bankers since his arrival was due to his interest in the formation of a large electrical company in Berlin, in which he hoped that Diaconto Gesselschaft and other German bankers would become interested. M. Dewitte also said that he had told the bankers with whom he had had interviews that if any further arrangements in connection with the Russo Chinese finances were required they would be conducted through French bankers exclusively and not through German houses.

TOLLS WILL NOT BE REDUCED.

System of Lighting the Baltic-North Sea Canal Defective.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—Despite the complaints made by the chamber of commerce at Stettin, as well as by others, the government has declined to reduce the tolls of the Baltic-North sea canal. The protest formulated by the Stettin chamber of commerce calls attention to the fact that during the month of August only 718 vessels passed through the canal, and this at the old rates. On Tuesday, October 1, the new rate, which increases the tolls by twenty-five per cent., will go into effect. As the system of lighting the banks of the canal by electricity is very defective, vessels venturing through the canal are likely to be stopped during many of the long winter nights, and it is certain that this prospect will still further and to a great extent lessen the traffic.

A notable incident in connection with the lighting of the canal occurred a few days ago. A pole carrying a wire charged with the full power of the plant fell, and two workmen passing along the bank in the darkness came into contact with it. One of the men dropped dead upon the fallen wire and the other was thrown backward insensible. They were found by other workmen, who tried to remove the dead body from the wire, but were forced to desist by the strong shocks they received, and the body remained where it was until the current was turned off some time afterwards.

RELATIONS HARMONIOUS.

Spain has Received no Warning from Secretary Olney.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Spanish embassy here authorizes the United Press to make the following statement: "The Spanish embassy has communicated by telegraph with the foreign office at Madrid in regard to the rumors published in the American papers and reproduced in the London newspapers, to the effect that Secretary Olney had warned the Spanish minister at Washington that the insurrection in Cuba must be crushed within three months, otherwise the United States government will adopt a different policy from the one hitherto observed. To this communication the Spanish foreign office has replied that the newspaper statement referred to is pure fiction. The relations between Spain and the United States, the reply adds, are smooth and harmonious, and there is not the slightest sign of friction."

Pasteur to be Buried in the Garden of the Institute.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A despatch from Paris says that it has been decided to inter the body of M. Pasteur in the garden of the Pasteur Institute in Paris, in accordance with the wishes of his family. After a service in Notre Dame Cathedral, the body will be placed temporarily in a vault at Montmartre.

Fire Still Burning in the Russian Naphtha Springs.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A despatch from Baku, Russia, says that the fire in the naphtha springs there continues. Three days ago one of the springs was set on fire by lightning and the flames spread to adjoining springs. Another person has perished, making the fourth fatality since the outbreak of the fire.

Resignation of the Russian Minister of Finance Probable.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—The Klein Journal asserts that the immediate resignation of M. Dewitte, Russian minister of finance, is assured.

SPIDER SILK.

At the beginning of the eighteenth century, Bon, first president of the audit office of Montpellier, presented to the Academy of Sciences some specimens of silk manufactured from the cocoons of spiders of the south of France. The difficulty at that time consisted in procuring a sufficient quantity of cocoons to allow the manufacture to become practical. Since that epoch there have been found in Asia, Africa, America and Oceanica spiders that produce silk in considerable quantity. Francis Garnier, in his voyage of exploration in Indo-China, calls attention to a spider indigenous to the province of Yun-nan that produces a very strong thread, which, according to him, is used for manufacturing a fabric peculiar to the country, called "trong hay tonan tse," satin of the eastern sea. Mr. A. Fauvel, who resided in China for a long time, also observed this spider, which weaves in the pines webs of yellow silk so strong that small birds are sometimes taken therein.

In Java and New Guinea there are large spiders that weave immense webs that reach several yards in diameter and are of incredible strength and solidity. Dr. A. Vinson, in his fine work entitled "Les Aranéides de la Reunion" (1863), thus describes the large and well known spiders of Reunion island: "It is to the wrinkled stripes of our large Epeiras, which ascend skyward in opening their spirally indicated, inform leaves, that our gigantic Epeiras attach their long silky threads and establish them from one tree to another at a distance of several yards. In these strong webs, multiplied and very broad, they are counted by hundreds, living in communities and in perfect harmony. They are found of all ages and of all sizes. They consist of the species known as the black and the golden Epeira which are so good commensals that the Linyphies establish themselves upon their great webs in order to capture small prey thereon."

So, too, in Madagascar, and in Australia, upon the west coast of Africa and the banks of the Congo, and in Paraguay and the Argentine Republic analogous species have been found.

Reaumur, who was commissioned by the Academy to examine the experiments of Bon, mentioned above, showed the great difficulty in the way of utilizing the silk was that of procuring cocoons in sufficient quantity. He remarked that if it were desired to obtain a satisfactory result it would be necessary to operate directly upon the thread as it comes from the spinneret of the spider, and not upon the cocoons or the silk. Mr. Rolt, an Englishman, made some experiments with the Epeira diadema. He wound his thread in measure as it was produced, and found that the animal furnished it in a continuous manner for about five minutes with a speed of one hundred and sixty-five feet per minute. He presented to the London Society of Arts a specimen of silk of about twenty thousand feet that had been spun by twenty-two spiders in less than two hours.

Rev. P. Camboue, a missionary at Tananarive (Madagascar), has very recently made some experiments upon the silk of a large spider of the country, the "halabe" (Epeira Madagascariensis). He fixed two of these spiders in a box in such a way as to allow the extremity of their abdomen to project externally. He then began to wind the thread secreted by these animals. Each spider yielded him about one hundred yards of silk of a beautiful golden yellow. He remarked that the thread was formed in much greater quantity after oviposition. At this epoch, a single spider yielded him two thousand yards of it in ten days, and another furnished him four thousand yards in twenty-seven days. This thread, which was strong and tenacious, was capable of supporting a weight of fifty grains, and of elongating thirteen per cent. Thanks to an ingenious apparatus of his invention, Father Camboue was easily able to reel and twill the thread. He sent to the National Society of Acclimatation of France some cards of silk thus obtained.

These experiments, which will certainly be resumed, demonstrate that the day is coming when this new textile will enter the silk industry. Moreover, some experiments in acclimating the "halabe" of Madagascar have been made in France. The rearing of these new insects has been intrusted to Mr. Fallou, who, thanks to his care and perseverance, will perhaps succeed in keeping them alive, especially after their method of feeding shall become better known. Moreover, the fecundated eggs as well as the young spiders still in the cocoons do not appear to suffer from the trip from Madagascar to Europe. The animal seems, besides, to accommodate itself to all climates. It fact, it inhabits the low and torrid regions of the coast of the African island as well as the temperate and cold highlands of the centre.

The "halabe" possesses other valuable qualities. In addition to the fact that it feeds upon cockchafers and locust, its thread might be employed in electricity on account of its insulating properties, and furnish useful aid to meteorology in the interim of the generalization of the use of it as a textile material.—[Le Magasin Pittoresque.

JAPANESE CARPENTRY.

Lumber is worth about twice as much in Japan as it is with us. Common lumber, which we sell for $10 and $12 a thousand feet, will bring 40 yen—that is, $20 gold—here. This is due chiefly to the scarcity of timber and the great labor required to work it up by their primitive processes. They have been cutting timber off their mountains here for twenty-five hundred years, and although the forests have been reproduced again and again during that period it is difficult and expensive to get logs down from the mountain sides in the absence of the necessary facilities. They usually go into the woods and cut one log at a time, which they haul out by hand or by oxen for many miles. Where streams are convenient they use them as we do, but they have no saw mills in the mountains, although there is an abundance of water power everywhere. I understand they have tried them, but have not been successful.

They cut all their lumber by hand with a wide and thin saw during a time of year when they have nothing else to do, and each man who is engaged in business that requires lumber usually buys his own logs and cuts them up himself at odd times. Women and men both work at it. One man or woman will work at the top of the log while another works underneath, but usually not with the same saw. I have seen four or five men working on the same log, each sawing off his own board. They raise the log at an incline of forty-five degrees, with one end on the ground and a rest about the middle, and when they work down to the rest they tie it up and begin at the other end again.

All the lumber is dressed by hand. I have found but one planing mill in the country. That is in Yokohama. It employs about one hundred and fifty hands, and, curiously enough, its entire product is made into boxes and shipped to India. It does no business in the local market. The machinery is all from Boston. The manager tells me that the company is thinking of enlarging the plant by adding a sash factory and machinery for making blinds and doors, also for the India market. I do not know why they do not sell their goods in the local market, but I presume there is a good reason for it; perhaps they get better prices in India.

The Japanese make all the woodwork about a house by hand, and most of their houses are all wood. They are very skillful in all kinds of cabinet and joiner work, and are more rapid than our people. Their tools are better adapted for doing close work than ours, and are kept very sharp. Besides, they give a great deal more labor and patience to an article than our carpenters and cabinet makers. You never see scratches from nicked tools in their planed work. They use very few nails, but mortise almost everything. It is usually so well done that it is difficult to detect the joints except by the grain, and it lasts forever. Some of their ships are made without a bit of iron in their composition. Everything is mortised.

What pay do they get? Skilled machinists, carpenters, joiners, cabinet makers and the highest class of that sort of mechanics get forty to forty-two sen a day for twelve hours' work. That is equivalent to twenty and twenty-one cents of our money; while second-rate workmen get from fifteen to twenty sen a day, and women, who work right along with the men in the shops, receive from ten to fifteen sen. They do not accomplish as much in twelve hours as our skilled mechanics will in eight hours, but they do it better.

The Japanese manufacturer and contractor usually prefer hand labor to machine work—first, because it is better finished, and second, because it gives employment to more people. I find this to be true in the government shops, with rich men who are putting up large buildings, and with large employers generally. There is no prejudice against machinery, and I do not think there would be any difficulty in introducing American machinery of every kind into Japan if our manufacturers will go at it in an intelligent manner.

The Japanese are very skillful in handling machinery when they once learn how. They learn best by imitation. It is difficult to make them understand how to use a machine by explanation, but if they can sit by and see some one else do it they will learn very rapidly. And in copying machinery they reproduce the original with great exactness and fidelity, even to any blemishes or ornaments that may appear. I have seen some remarkable examples of their imitation. Usually the finish is a little rougher than the original, but the working parts are identical, and they get the finish all right after a little exercise.—[Japan letter in Chicago News.

If your child is puny, fretful, troubled with glandular swellings, inflamed eyes, or sores on the head, face, or body, a course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla is needed to expel the scrofulous humors from the blood. The sooner you begin to give this medicine the better.

THE LONDON FLOWER MARKET.

To speak in detail of all the flowers in Covent Garden Market would be to write an article like a florist's catalogue. Everything is there that is in season. When we say it, in the last days of July, masses of sweet peas, stocks and carnations, roses of every description—choice ones, tied in small bunches; commoner kinds, with long, liberal stalks and abundant leaves and thorns, bound in big bunches, such as one likes to bring in from the shrubberies of a generous country garden—lilies and gladiolas, white, red and orange, some in pots standing tall and stately on the shelves above the stalls, others laid in layers of cotton wool in oblong cases, and looking as if prepared for their own obsequies; forests of palms and maiden-hair ferns, fringes of white creeping campanula, hazes of silvery gypsophylla, sky-like stretches of blue cornflower—struck us as among the most vivid and distinctive features.

Between 6 and 7 o'clock we noticed a good many Sisters of Charity buying flowers for the churches they tend, and hospital nurses catering for their wards. Between 7 and 8 o'clock business began to be very eager, and from 8 to 9 o'clock the work of dismantling went on apace. It is then that the poorer class of purchasers come, the women in the familiar costume of the street corner—the black or nondescript colored gown and tartan shawl and bonnet of straw, crape or lace, well crushed down and battered, but brightened up with a brave bunch of the commonest and loudest artificial flowers a few pence can buy. This is the time when bargains may be made, and the poor woman who wants to furnish her basket for sale, and the managing lady with a dinner party coming on, who, "though on pleasure she is bent has yet a frugal mind," are equally eager to buy cheap. At 9 o'clock the closing bell rings, and after a few minutes' grace, during which the exodus goes on rapidly, the doors are shut, and the great flower market is over for the day.—[The Spectator.

CHURCH ENDORSEMENT.

Should Be Accorded Cubans in Their Struggle for Liberty.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—Rev. George O. Lorimer, D.D., pastor of Tremont Temple, during his sermon in Music hall yesterday, spoke interestingly on the Cuban insurrection, and particularly on the attitude of the United States toward the rebels. He said:

"I believe the church ought to voice the great aspirations of man for liberty. While it is not in my sermon, it will explain one thing when I tell you that I cannot understand why we are not doing more than we are to express our sympathy for Cuba." (Applause).

"We claim to be liberty-loving people. I want the people of our country to do two things. I want them to express their sympathy with Cuba, saying, 'We believe that Republican government is the best government under heaven, and while we know it is not perfect, and while we know abuses grow under it, nevertheless we bid you God speed in trying to realize it.'

"And then we want our government to grant them belligerent rights. They have been striving and struggling and fighting without a friendly hand extended, and with a feeling that they are to be strung up to the nearest tree, or shot down in the trenches, simply because they long to join the great republics of the western world."

Patriots Should Be Favored.

Rev. James H. Brady, D.D., pastor of the People's Temple, spoke on the Cuban war as follows, in an address yesterday afternoon: "Down yonder in the southern gulf is a magnanimous people struggling for liberty as our American colonists did in the time of the fathers and of King George, and I wish to say that the great loving, pulsing, loving, philanthropic heart of this free nation ought to express itself for those patriots in unmistakable terms."

HAILE AGAIN SPEAKS.

Not a Candidate For Governor and Will Work For Greenhalge's Interests.

ENFIELD, Mass., Sept. 30.—Ex-Lieutenant Governor William H. Haile has personally put a damper upon the attempt of the A. P. A. element in the Republican party to bring his name before the convention as a candidate for governor of this state of Massachusetts, by the following statement:

"I learn that there was a meeting in Boston of the anti-Greenhalge delegates to the republican state convention, and that it was voted to support William H. Haile as their candidate for governor. This is a direct ignoring of my recently published statement as I cannot let pass in silence to myself or to my friends.

"I am not a candidate, have not been a candidate and will not be a candidate. Is that sufficiently explicit?

"I cannot be insensible to the kindness and confidence which finds its expression in the desire of so many friends to give me their support in the coming convention. I am not ungrateful to them and would give me this evidence of their good will.

"At the same time I am not blinded to what seems to me to be for the best interests of the Republican party. It seems to me that Governor Greenhalge has received an expression of the full confidence of the Republican party, and that the best interests of the state and party will be served if his renomination is made as nearly unanimous as possible. To this end I shall be glad to contribute in any way I can."

A Tardy Reward.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Sept. 30.—The original commission papers granted by Governor Andrew to Charles M. Wheldon of this city, by which the latter was made colonel, will be delivered to him this week. The commission was granted in recognition of Mr. Wheldon's successful efforts in recruiting the Second Bay State regiment, afterwards known as the Thirty-seventh Massachusetts. The commission was recently found in the archives of the state house at Boston, the regiment's historian, to whom it should have been delivered to Mr. Wheldon 33 years ago by Colonel Gooding of Indianapolis, but for some unknown reason it was not, and, instead, it was sent to the state house without explanation.

Submarine Washed Away.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Sept. 30.—The back wall of a new building just completed by E. B. Watson & Co. of Boston collapsed Saturday night. The wall was 40ft. wide and 60ft. high, and was part of the center room in a paper mill. The opening of a new flume caused an immense volume of water to wash away the granite foundation. The wall will be immediately rebuilt. The accident caused a loss of $8000.

Not a Murder.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 30.—Medical Examiner Palmer decided yesterday that Mrs. Lucy Lindsey, proprietress of a disorderly house, whose dead body was found in a bedroom Saturday, died from concussion of the brain, caused by an accidental fall against a stove, and that the woman was not murdered, as at first suspected. Dr. Palmer decided that an autopsy was unnecessary.

Big Gambling Raid.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—A large squad of police raided Chinatown yesterday afternoon. Nine houses were raided, and the inmates were escorted to the station house. They were all charged with keeping and being present where gaming instruments were found. Twenty dollars in fan-tan chips and a large outfit for playing fan-tan were seized.

Occupants Unknown.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 30.—The steam yacht Juanita was raised Saturday afternoon. The yacht was found to be in good condition. In the cabin was found the effects of the late occupants, but no trace of the bodies has been discovered. The door was open, but whether two persons were on board still remains a mystery.

Lifesavers to the Rescue.

MARQUETTE, Mich., Sept. 30. — The steam barge Kershaw and the schooners Moonlight and Kent went ashore on the Cooclay beach yesterday morning while trying to make this harbor. The schooners were driven high on the sand beach, and will weather the storm. The Kershaw was driven on a reef and broke in two in the middle, the bow being washed away. The other half of the boat is still on the rocks with a furious sea beating against it. The life-saving crew rescued the crew after many hours of perilous work. One lifeboat was smashed by waves.

No Further Delay.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 30. — United States Minister Terrell has notified the porte that Messrs. Chilton and Hunter, who were appointed provisional consuls of the United States at Erzroom and Kharput, will start for their posts immediately, waiting no longer for their exequaturs, the delay in the issuance of which has already kept them here two months.

Going to China.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. — The Central Presbyterian church gave a farewell last evening to Rev. Charles O. Gill and his wife, who will leave this week for Pekin, where they will act as missionaries. Mr. Gill was the captain of the Yale football team, and many of the noted college athletes were present to bid him goodby.

Harrison as a Magazine Writer.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Ex-President Benjamin Harrison has entered the literary field. He is now engaged at his Indianapolis home on a series of articles to be called "This Country of Ours," the publication of which will shortly begin in a ladies magazine of this city.

Bad Redskins.

HENNESSEY, O. T., Sept. 30.—The Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians on the reservation west of here have become ugly, and are holding war dances and disregarding the agent's orders to keep on the reservation.

The Gold Outflow.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Exports of specie from this port last week were $3,820,037, of which $2,509,837 were gold. The imports were: Gold, $67,086; silver, $36,347.

President Dined Out.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Sept. 30.—E. C. Benedict's steam yacht Oneida arrived off Gray Gables at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Upon invitation of Mr. Benedict, President Cleveland was his guest at dinner on board.

Burned to Death.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Honora Hoey of this city was terribly burned at her home Saturday night. A lamp was overturned while she was asleep and the bed clothing ignited. Mrs. Hoey died yesterday.

THE YACHT RACES.

The match concluded Saturday consisted of best three out of five races, sailed over the Long Island Sound course of the Seawanhaka club. The yacht selected to defend the cup was the Ethelwynn of the India Harbor Yacht club, and she was not chosen until the committee had a series of races among the half-raters to find out which was the best to use in American interests. Thus everything was as formal as though the Defender and another big yacht were to be the contestants.

The courses were all 12 miles in length, the first and third were to leeward and return, three miles to the leg and repeat, the second being the triangular, two miles to the leg and over again.

The first race was won by the American and the second by the Briton. On the third day the Ethelwynn withdrew after making one round.

In the last two races, when the Yankee was handled by the Ball brothers, her best qualities were brought out, and she won hands down. It should be said, however, that the victory of the American only carries out the opinion of the Spruce's skipper, who said on Tuesday last that he believed the Ethelwynn was the better boat. Mr. Brand did not mean to intimate that he expected or hoped to win by superior handling, but all yachtsmen who have watched the Spruce in these races, agree that the English skipper is as capable a hand as ever took a tiller into his hand.

What Stuart Says.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—In reply to a query as to the truth of the report that it had been decided to change the date of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight to Oct. 7 or Oct. 10, Dan Stuart wires from Dallas that no change has been proposed.

WARSHIPS READY

To Enforce Demands Made by Great Britain on the Chinese Government.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 30.—Failing the entire compliance of the central government with the British demands, it is understood that a fleet of 14 warships will make a demonstration before Nankin by Wednesday next. The British demand is that within 14 days an edict must be issued degrading the viceroy of Szechuen, or otherwise the British admiral commanding will act.

The wife and family and the treasure of the viceroy of Nankin have been brought to Shanghai for safety. Rich Chinese merchants are coming here from every side seeking shelter.

The British warships Rainbow, Plover, Spartan, Swift and Æolus are at ports on the Yang-tse-kiang river. The Caroline, Undaunted, Edgar, Archer and Alacrity are at Woo-Sung. The Daphne and Firebrand are at Shanghai. The British admiral is on board the Edgar.

Famous Scientist Dead.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—The government has decided to hold a state funeral for the late Louis Pasteur, the eminent bacteriologist, who died Saturday evening. Professor Pasteur's wife has received telegrams of sympathy from all parts of the world. Professor Pasteur had suffered from paralysis for a considerable period of time. About eight days ago he sustained a violent paralytic stroke, and Saturday suffered still another severe attack. He grew worse rapidly, and remained in a comatose condition during his last hours. At 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon he expired. The end was absolutely without pain.

COTTOLENE

Make a Pie

Shorten it with Cottolene instead of lard and see what a crisp crust it will have; how delicious and wholesome it will be. Pie made with Cottolene will do a dyspeptic good. Do everybody good because it is good. There is only one secret in cooking with Cottolene—use but two-thirds as much as you would naturally use of lard. Follow this rule and Cottolene will do the rest.

Genuine is sold everywhere in tins with pail-mark — "Cottolene" and steer's head in cotton-plant wreath on every tin. Made only by

THE POND ESTATE.

The Pond estate on Ridge road was offered for sale at auction today by the executor, Ernest G. Stedman of New York. The estate contains about sixteen acres of land, with a cottage and other buildings, used a year ago by the Golf Club. The larger portion, a little more than ten acres, is on the ocean, opposite the Dumplings, and affords an excellent site for a summer residence, with an ocean frontage of eight hundred feet and beach and boating facilities, the land rising to a considerable height above the water and giving a widely extended view of the ocean, harbor and bay. The property adjoins the estate of the late A. A. Low on the south and that of Mr. John W. Auchincloss on the north. It was offered in two parcels, one containing the ocean site and the other, about five acres, including the cottage. The larger piece was to be sold separately or the purchaser was given the privilege of taking the other land at the same price per acre and $10,000 additional for the improvements; or he might take two acres next adjoining and the executor would remove the cottage.

The sale was attended by quite a large number, including Mr. J. Hooker Hammersley, Mr. James V. Parker, Mr. J. N. A. Griswold, Mr. Theo. M. Davis, Mr. John H. Glover, Mr. W. R. Hunter, Colonel John Hare Powel and Lieutenant H. L. Willoughby. Auctioneer Burlingham read the conditions of the sale and asked for bids for the larger portion. The bidding was opened by Mr. Whipple, at $1,000 an acre. This was raised to $2,000, $3,000, $3,500 and $4,000, quite rapidly, but beyond this there was a long wait and many calls by the auctioneer. Finally Mr. James V. Parker bid $4,100 an acre. This was raised to $4,200, and on a bid from the executor for $4,300 the property was withdrawn and the sale closed.

THE HAMMETT DINNER TO THE ASYLUM INMATES.

The inmates of the city asylum will have their annual dinner and entertainment from the proceeds of the bequest of the late Joseph M. Hammett, at the asylum Thursday, October 3, the anniversary of Mr. Hammett's birth and the date set in his will. The inmates will be given a turkey dinner at noon and an indoor entertainment in the chapel in the afternoon, consisting of readings and instrumental and vocal music. The commissioners have invited Mayor Boyle and the members of the City Council to make their annual inspection of the asylum at this time, meeting at the asylum at 12:30 o'clock Thursday.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN JOHN JOHNSON.

Captain John Johnson died at the Newport Hospital yesterday, of typhoid fever, after an illness of a little over a week. The deceased was a native of England, and came to this city about 1848 and since had made his home here. He was for a number of years a sailor in the West Indian trade, and during the past thirty years or more had been a boatman about Newport, being employed for many years by Miss Rachel L. Kennedy. For a time he was master-at-arms at the Naval Academy here, and for some years past had in winter been an inmate of the Sailors' Snug Harbor in New York, spending the summer season here. He leaves seven children.

Mrs. Ida Atkinson went to Northfield at the begining of the fall term, to act as matron in one of the buildings of Moody's seminary for young ladies.

A Providence paper speaks of the sweet corn at the city farm, Pawtucket, being infested with a sort of grub, which begins at the silk and eats down the ear, very soon rendering the corn unfit for use. There is one in each ear, which varies in size, according to the length of time the grub has been feeding. Professor Packard of Brown University pronounces it to be the famous boll worm of the South, so named because it attacks the boll of the cotton. It is allied to the cut worm, and corn is one of its favorite articles of food. Those appearing so late in the season are, he says, probably the second brood, and the only way they can be destroyed is by hand picking, as it would be dangerous to use Paris green on an article of food, as may be done with cotton. The worm is very prolific, the female hatching five hundred eggs at a time. Mr. Joseph G. Dennis and Mr. William F. Brayton have seen quite a number of these worms in their corn, but were unable to identify them until reading the description given by Professor Packard, and they consider them quite a menace for the future of corn growing.

"GIRL WANTED."

The Police Relief Fund Association will have its annual benefit at the Opera House tomorrow, when two performances, afternoon and evening, will be given of the new farce-comedy, "Girl Wanted." The piece was written by R. N. Stephens and is produced by Managers Davis and Keogh, with a very clever company of entertainers, including the well-known comedian and imitator, Frank Bush. Bush figures as a stranded song and dance man who sees a chance to win a girl and a fortune. In order to win them he masquerades as a half-dozen different personages, two of them being feminine. A hustling Hebrew and a fascinating prima donna are two vastly different characters, yet in "Girl Wanted" Mr. Bush represents them with equal completeness. The piece requires a numerous company of clever farcical players and specialty performers.

THE EVILS OF OVER-EATING.

I assert that it is the duty of the good housewife to keep down the appetite of her husband. Particularly is this necessary in the cases of well-to-do professional and business men. In the families of mechanics earning low wages such a warning is almost wholly unnecessary, but it may be said of most men in good circumstances that they eat too freely of rich food. If men would begin careful and systematic physical culture in early youth and continue the practice through life, good health would be the result.

Beyond the age of forty—at a period when so many are physically lazy—the superior value of exercise is apparent; but ordinarily this is just the time when the hygiene of athletics is neglected. There is no reason why a punching-bag, rowing-machine, pulley-weights and other apparatus should be relegated to college boys and clerks. But having done a good deal of work in his time it is almost impossible to persuade a business or professional man, turning forty, to give any sort of attention to physical culture if such training has been previously neglected. Hence, I say it is the duty of a woman to keep from her husband all rich compounds that will ultimately ruin his digestion. High feeding is occasionally neutralized by hard exercise, but in the absence of the latter it is mischievous in the extreme. If your husband will stand the treatment, begin by switching off from the heavy breakfast of steak, hot rolls, potatoes, etc., and set before him eggs on toast, oatmeal and coffee.—[Rev. F. S. Root, in October Ladies' Home Journal.
